

What is naloxone or Narcan?

Naloxone is a safe, effective, life-saving medicine that temporarily reverses an opioid overdose. Narcan is the brand name for naloxone.

Opioids include substances like oxycodone, codeine, fentanyl, and heroin. If a person uses too much of an opioid, an overdose can happen. But death can be prevented if naloxone is given in time.

If you think you are encountering an overdose, immediately call

911.

Is it really OK for anyone to use it?

Yes, you don't need to be a medical or emergency professional to use naloxone—anyone in Minnesota can carry or administer it. It isn't addictive, it doesn't produce any form of intoxication, and it has no adverse effects.

Under Steve's Law (Minnesota's Good Samaritan and Naloxone Law), a person who calls 911 or seeks medical assistance for someone experiencing a drug overdose is protected from being charged or prosecuted for possessing, using, or sharing drugs. As long as they act in good faith to get help, the law protects them from certain drug-related charges. The person experiencing the overdose is also protected.

Is it difficult to use?

Naloxone is simple to use. The kits come with instructions, which vary depending on whether you're using injectable naloxone or nasal spray.

If you visit the Rice County Chemical and Mental Health Coalition naloxone webpage, you can learn more and watch videos that demonstrate the steps.
